STILL DVING IN THE SAGEBRUSH .- The Indians around Pioche continue to perish, unattended and uncared for, in the sagebrush. The last dead one brought to our notice was discovered yesterday morning by Henry Stansfield, of the Star Restaurant, about a mile west of the city. We have not heard whether it was male or female. A few old rags covered mate or issuade. A lew out rags covered the body, and close by was the remains of a camp-fire, with three empty fruit-cans near. The savage most likely starved to death. Deputy Indian Agent Ingalls told us he would try and have the Coroner make a post-mortem examination. Later—Deputy Agent Ingalis informs us that the dead Indian is one of a band of twenty Shoshones, who lately arrived here from Troy District, and that his death was from a natural

PIOCHE POSTMASTER.-By our Pioche special of last evening, we note the receipt, by T. W. Abrahams, of that place, of his commission as postmaster. Mr. Abrahams was sometime ago a citizen of Salt Lake, being connected with the Tribune office. He will undoubtedly make an efficient and accommodating Postmaster, and the people of the boro' of Pioche are fortunate in his selection. Salt Lake Tribune.

Ann Broken.-On his way to his home at Bullionville, yesterday, from this city, Mr. John M. Worley, a merthis city, Mr. John M. Worley, a merchant of the former place, was thrown from his buggy, by his horse taken fright and jumping from the road, resulting in the breaking of one of his arms. We are indebted for this item to Squire Logan, who was with Mr. Worley at the time of the accident, on his way to his home in the Muddy Valley.

The Joculan Side of the Question.—
The dry monotony of proceedings in the District Court is often relieved by a joke in some shape. Judge Mesick was reading the long answer to the complaint of plaintiffs, when a spectator on a back siate generally formed the gangue of the sanguage of the gangue of the gangue of the sanguage of the gangue of the gangue of the gangue of the sanguage of the gangue of the gangue

T. F. LAWLER, formerly railroad agent at Palisade, has taken charge of Pritchard's fast freight business in Pioche. Mr. Lawler is a thorough-going, prompt busi-ness man, and we have no doubt that he will give entire satisfaction in his new field of labor.—[Eureka Sentinel.

A number of sam-ples of rock were submitted to him to give his opinion as to their value, which, with some few exceptions he stated that he thought they were merely shale, and would not assay much. No action was taken on the proposition. The witness then said that the Raymond & Ely ledge does not enter the overlying slate; that the first level of the Raymond & Ely is not driven mainly through slate; the stopes from the third to the second level were not in the shale, as the vein butts no against the shale and quits; that the tongue west of the cross-head on the second lode was in conformably to the shale, and does not cut into it; don't known of any place in which the vein enters the shale; in the first little level west of the cross-head no ore; generally nothing but a little bunch of ore; the ledge found in the drift 43 feet down the Panaca shaft is in shale; the only reason he had to give why the Raymond & Ely vein entered the shale is because it don't; the vein on the side of the open cut is a lead vein; it has no gangue or quartz. He thought that such radical changes in veins as turning from copper to tin were not likely; don't know of any such veins in Cornwall; perhaps such a change might be caused from surface infiltration; as a general proposition thought veins change but little; thought there was a great deal of lead in the lowest levels of the Raymond & Ely mine; can't say whether there is much in the list level; the ore is stoped out; think there is no level of the Raymond & Ely mine; can't say whether there is much in the last level; the ore is stoped out; think there is no level of the Raymond & Ely mine; can't say whether there is much in the last level; the ore is stoped out; think there is a boulder immediately above and at the end of the cut; in the stripping west of the cut there is no ledge, don't think there is a boulder immediately above and at the end of the cut there is no ledge, don't think there is a boulder immediately above and at the end of the cut there is no ledge, don't think there is a boulder immediate Boors Lann Excurs -Some Califor nia land-sharks have been sending out agents through Southeastern Nevada to make claim under the State law to the most valuable agricultural lands. In some of the valleys north of Pioche-Spring, Shoshone and White river valleys-section after section has been claimed in this bogus way. In some instances the very tracts on which bona fide settlers had been living for a year or two have been thus claimed. The two have been thus claimed. The foreign land-grabbers, knowing the money advanced to the State would be refunded if they were prevented from acquiring title, have laid claim, through the use of fictitious names, to entire settlements in the southern and castern portions of White Pine county, hoping they would be allowed to make final nayment and castern the county of the county they would be allowed to make man payment and get title before the occu-pants would awaken to their danger. Every one of these bogus entries can be nullified and canceled. But the occu-pants must not sleep on their rights; they should send in their counter ap-plications without delay. Prominent they should send in their counter ap-plications without delay. Prominent among the land-grabbers referred to, is a well-known real estate man of Santa Clara county, California.

[The plaintiffs' counsel said that there was work done at that point since.] The existence of such a ledge would not alter my mind as to there being a hanging wall in the cut; there might be two ledges which crossed each other; I find metallic discoloration beyond the cut, not feeders; it is decomposed slate, colored by iron; a sectional map of the Panaca and Lightner shafts were exhibited by draft; after examining which the witness said that if the Raymond and Elyvein were projected upwards at the same inclination it showed between the fourth and fifth levels it would come out ARE POSTED.-The Shoshones around Pioche are well posted on the progress of the Modoc war and take lively interest in it. They are probably informed by miscegenating white men. One dropped into this office yesterday afternoon and enquired for "the newspaper man," to ascertain the latest news of Captain Jack.

No WESTERN MAIL. - The Hamilton stage came in yesterday on time, but brought no mail. We heard the snowblockade on the railroad given as the reason of the failure, but how snow ten feet from the Lightner shaft, and 45 feet from incline M, and run considerably north of the Panaca shaft; the storms east of Salt Lake can affect the mails between here and San Francisco is more than we can understand.
